FORTUNE her gifts may variouſly diſpoſe,
And theſe be happy call'd, unhappy thoſe;
But Heav'n's juſt balance equal will appear,
While thoſe are plac'd in hope, and theſe in fear:
Not preſent good or ill's the joy or curſe;
But future views of better, or of worſe.

Wide flies the tedded grain; all in a row
Advancing broad, or wheeling round the field,
They ſpread the breathing harveſt to the ſun,
That throws refreſhful round a rural ſmell:

The Seat of the SOUL.

IN the deſign of MARTIN to inveſtigate diſeaſes of the mind, he thought nothing ſo neceſſary as an inquiry after the ſeat of the ſoul; in which, at firſt, he labour'd under great uncertainties. Sometimes he was of opinion that it lodged in the brain, ſometimes in the ſtomach, and ſometimes in the heart. Afterwards he thought it abſurd to confine that ſovereign lady to one apartment; which made him infer, that ſhe ſhifted it according to the ſeveral functions of life: The brain was her ſtudy, the heart her ſtate-room, and the ſtomach her kitchen. But as he ſaw ſeveral offices of life went on at the ſame time, he was forced to give up this hypotheſis alſo. He now conjectured it was more for the dignity of the ſoul to perform ſeveral operations by her little miniſters, the animal ſpirits: from whence it was natural to conclude, that ſhe reſides in different parts, according to different inclinations, ſexes, ages and profeſſions. Thus in epicures he ſeated her in the mouth of the ſtomach; philoſophers have her in the brain, ſoldiers in the heart, women in their tongues, fiddlers in their fingers, and rope-dancers in their toes. At length he grew fond of the glandula pinealis, diſſecting many ſubjects to find out the figure of this gland, from whence he might diſcover the cauſe of the different tempers of mankind. He ſupported, that in factious and reſtleſs ſpirited people, he ſhould find it ſharp and pointed, allowing no room for the ſoul to repoſe herſelf; and that in quiet tempers it was flat, ſmooth and ſoft, affording to the ſoul, as it were, an eaſy cuſhion. He was confirmed in this by obſerving, that calves and philoſophers, tigers and ſtateſmen, foxes and ſharpers, peacocks and fops, cock-ſparrows and coquettes, monkeys and players, couriers and ſpaniels, moles and miſers, exactly reſembled one another in the conformation of the pineal gland. He did not doubt likewiſe to find the ſame reſemblance in highwaymen and conquerors: In order to ſatisfy himſelf in which it was, he purchaſed the body of one of the firſt ſpecies at Tyburn, hoping in time to have the happineſs of one of the latter under his anatomical knife.

HOW ill the motion with the muſic ſuits!
So ORPHEUS fiddled, and ſo danc'd the brutes.

STANZAS TO PATIENCE.

FROM the bright regions of eternal day,
Where, in inſpired notes, glad Cherubs ſing
In one enraptur'd never ceaſing lay,
To Nature's GOD, her Father, and her King;
Deſcend meek PATIENCE; Heav'ns beſt, richeſt grant
To man, whoſe ſtubborn, whoſe ungovern'd will
Can every bleſſing, ev'ry joy ſupplant,
And in their place, ſet every poignant ill.
O come ſurrounded with thy ſober train,
Of Meekneſs, Piety, and holy Hope,
Bleſt ſource of peace, bleſs'd cure for ev'ry pain,
Without whoſe aid, the proudeſt ſpirits droop.
Kindly deſcend to thoſe, whoſe humbled mind
Knows no relief, but what from Patience ſprings;
Whoſe griefs no cure, whoſe pangs no reſpite find,
On thoſe deſcend "with healing in thy wings."
O! hover round the melancholy bed,
Where ling'ring ſickneſs claims thy foſtering care;
Thy influence rears the drooping ſuff'rer's head,
And gives a ray of merit to his prayer.
'Tis thine to ſoothe the rugged hand of pow'r,
To cheer the weak, to comfort thoſe that faint,
From orphan cheeks to wipe the guſhing ſhower,
And ſteal the anguiſh from the martyr'd ſaint.
So potent is thy ſalutary ſway,
That want, oppreſſion, ſickneſs, grief and care,
Strip'd of their rigor paſs, half-felt away,
Or, like the terrors of a dream appear.
'Tis guilt alone appals the human heart;
Prompts the unpity'd ſigh, th' inceſſant tear,
That in ſuch baleful poiſon dips the dart,
A wounded ſpirit who could ever bear!
O may my ſoul direct her ſteps aright,
To find the path, to man ſo kindly giv'n,
Through pleaſures that allure, through pains that fright,
By patient ſteadineſs to climb to Heav'n.
